Synopsis:

The most fought-over area in matrimonial proceedings is usually over the children of the marriage.

What do guardianship, custody, care, control and access to the children mean? How much access is reasonable for the parent not having custody? Who determines the religion and education of children? Should judges interview children? How should matters proceed in court? What happens when a parent abducts his own child? Is there a way to prevent this? How do the amended and new provisions in the Law Reform (Marriage & Divorce) Act 1976 affect the rights of the children?

These and other matters will be the subject of discussion in this talk.

The speaker:

Honey Tan Lay Ean is a Barrister from Middle Temple, and has an LLB from the University of Buckingham, and an LLM from Warwick University. She is a member of the Family Law Committee of the Malaysian Bar.

Honey's main area of practice is in the area of high conflict matrimonial law. She is also engaged in public interest litigation, primarily in the areas of equality and non-discrimination.
