Committal Proceedings are commonly used to enforce orders obtained in family matters. As the proceedings are quasi-criminal in nature, its procedural requirements are highly technical and need to be strictly complied with.

This talk will give an overview of committal proceedings and highlight the common pitfalls to avoid. While the examples will be from the area of family law, the procedural session of the talk deals with the general application of civil matters.

The Speaker:

Matt Wong Chong Ee is the sole proprietor of Matt Wong & Co. He serves on the Bar Council's Family Law and Mediation Committees. His principal areas of practice are contentious matrimonial matters and proceedings involving children. He hopes to see discourse and development in the local family law scene and enjoys conducting trainings and workshops on the subject. He is also a mediator and collaborative professional.
